401k PORTFOLIO JANUARY 2019 UPDATE & NEWSLETTER

NETJETS®

TAKE CONTROL OF YOUR FUTURE

January 2019 Newsletter

In our last newsletter, we noted that our defensive stance for the EZTracker model portfolios was justified by November's continued volatility across the markets. Now that December has passed, the term "volatility" does not even do justice to what investors have seen and experienced since. As of yesterday's 12/31 close: S&P -9.18% for the month (YTD-6.24%), DJII -8.66% (-5.63%) and Nasdaq -9.48% (-3.88%), closing out the worst December since the Great Depression. EZTracker's continued defensive stance for its model portfolios continued to be justified.

We are not making any changes to any EZTracker portfolios for this month. The volatility over the last two weeks puts in stark relief the continued risks that surround all investing decisions, such as economic growth concerns and political and economic uncertainties like the unresolved US-China trade war. We aim to be as consistent as possible with our strategies for the EZTracker model portfolios. While we may not capture each and every market peak or valley, our disciplined approach has provided for consistent market returns over our 16-year history. More importantly, this has enabled us to reduce exposure across all our model portfolios in advance of the recent market gyrations, thereby outperforming EZTracker's benchmarks.

After the markets underwent a prolonged increase throughout much of the year – hitting multiple all-time highs on the way but punctuated by two separate corrections – 2018 closed with all major indices posting their first annual loss since 2015. This all occurred in the midst of rising interest rates, an ugly trade battle with many of the US' key trading partners, and growing fears of a slowdown in global economic growth. On the flip side, the signs of recession that everyone has been looking for have not materialized, and consumer spending has remained very strong.

What We're Watching

At the end of October we outlined a host of potential causes for our taking a more conservative stance with EZTracker model portfolios: Corporate Earnings, European Union/Italy, U.S./China Trade Dispute and Rising Interest Rates/Hawkish Fed. Since then, certain things have crystallized (Fed interest rate hike), and others remain uncertain (worldwide growth rates and US/China trade). Furthermore there have been new stressors on the market such as Presidential threats of interference at the Fed, the US government shutdown, and China's domestic economic slowdown. Taking into account the year-end volatility and the markets being within correction territory, we see many unresolved issues but also some positives:

Consumer Spending: Americans' purchases make up nearly 70% of economic activity and that engine is expected to continue. Mastercard reported that holiday spending growth was the best in six years, while amazon.com said it had record unit sales.

China economic growth: As China is the world's largest exporter of goods with the most demand for materials from other countries, what happens there matters for businesses and markets across the globe. China just posted the first drop in industrial profits in over 3 years, and a big wild card is how the trade war between the U.S. and China will play out in 2019.

Inflation: Despite faster pay increases, most economists expect inflation to remain tempered next year. Oil and gasoline prices have fallen amid rising supplies and cooling global demand.

The Federal Reserve: Of the 5 major economic drivers (consumer behavior, investment, inflation, housing and the labor market), consumer behavior, inflation and the labor market all lack indications of imminent downturn. This moderates the risk that the Federal Reserve will cause a recession by hiking interest rates too much too soon. The Fed can move slowly, and pause if hiccups in the data suggest higher rates are hurting consumers or hiring. Evidence suggests that the Fed understands this just fine. January could prove pivotal as analysts will get more direction:

- January 3: Minutes from the December meeting of the rate-setting FOMC are due
- January 29-30: The next central bank meeting which allows it the opportunity to further fine-tune its message.

Turning on the Crystal Ball. Barron's Roster of Experts Batted .000 for 2018

Every year at this time we check with the experts. While EZTracker doesn't make predictions, the year-end brings out the analysts and gurus to enlighten us for the coming year. Each December, Barron's takes a poll of ten experts from the major financial firms – below we summarize their scorecard for 2018 and “guesstimates” for 2019.

For 2019 all ten of Barron's listed analysts call for the S&P to finish higher by year-end with the most optimistic forecasts at 3100 (a 23.7% increase from current levels, and 19.2% up from the polling date). Not one analyst took a conservative stance. Keep in mind that all analysts from last years Barron's panel missed the mark – missed it by an average of more than 11%.

A Hallmark Moment:
Recently, when deplaning a flight I ended up talking with the pilot. I handed him an EZTracker business card and he replied “I’m a subscriber!” I told him I was a partner and a co-author of the newsletter, to which he responded “Get out of here! Your bold call at the end of October really saved me!” He introduced me to his co-pilot, mentioning that he would be missing out “if he was not signed up with these guys.” We spoke for a few minutes, exchanged season greetings, and went on our way. I recall thinking, what a great job we have and how our subscribers really count on us. Happy New Year to all and a prosperous 2019 for everyone!

Morningstar Target Risk Index

The Morningstar Target Risk Index series serve as benchmarks to help with investment selections. They cover a global set of stocks, bonds and commodities. While not investable indices, they represent challenging benchmarks for long-term investing plans such as the EZTracker model portfolios.

Historical Performance

Any investment strategy should be measured one way: Results over time. Not one-week, one-month, or even one-year. While past performance is not a guarantee of future performance, our record has been excellent in delivering long-term returns. As with any long-term investing strategy, you should not expect dramatic short-term results to offset past losses.

Below is the current fund performance for the alternatives in the NetJets 401k plan. The “Tracker Average” is a weighted average of performance over the past year and is a key factor in selecting funds for inclusion in the model portfolios.
